

Licensing of Livery Yards

There are no immediate plans for the licensing of livery yards in Wales or England although the TBA are keeping a close eye on the issue and are in regular contact with the appropriate government officials. While we understand the pressure to improve standards, particularly in DIY livery yards and some dealers' premises, where standards are less than satisfactory, we need to make known the excellent standards, and self-regulatory mechanisms already existing in the vast majority of thoroughbred stud premises, and avoid any unnecessary red-tape and extra expenditure for thoroughbred breeders.
